Teacher to share Sept. 11 Twin Towers experience with students

Glenbard South High School students in teacher Seamus Campion's social studies class will have a living history lesson this week as Campion talks about his experience escaping from the 64th floor of the World Trade Center Towers on Sept. 11, 2001.

Before becoming a teacher, Campion worked in investment banking in Chicago and New York. His lecture on Friday will begin with an audio montage and video clips of the day the Twin Towers were attacked. Campion will encourage students to ask questions about his experience.
